

Approved For Release 2005/01/13 : CIA-RDP88-01365R000300210047-3
WALL STREET JOURNAL
15 NOV 1968 SOC. 4.01.4 Shadow Over Angkor
Sihanouk, Norodom

A former Soviet major general, in a rare display of public defiance, criticized what he called "bureaucracy" hiding "behind the mask of so-called Soviet democracy." The emotional oration by Pyotr Grigoriенко was given at the Moscow funeral of a writer who had protested Russia's invasion of Czechoslovakia. The writer, Alexei Y. Kostern, died Sunday of a heart ailment at age 72. Grigorienko praised imprisoned intellectuals as "victims of the bureaucratic machinery."

ASIA'S 007? Cambodia will premiere tomorrow a spy thriller called Shadow Over Angkor. The hero: Prince Sihanouk, shown foiling a U.S. plot against his country; he is also the film's producer, director, scriptwriter. The villain: A French actor playing retired Gen. Edward Lansdale, a real-life CIA operator. The heroine: Sihanouk's beautiful wife.